Aptly named the "Sea to Sky Highway." Highway 99 links Vancouver to Whistler via some of the most spectacular coastal wilderness in the world. Upgraded, widened and divided for the 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games, the highway flanks Howe Sound, the southernmost fjord in North America, and serves up uninterrupted views of the dramatic glaciers of the Coast Mountains.

The 123 kilometre (76 mile) journey to Whistler travels through five distinct bio and geo-climatic zones dotted with waterfalls, rainforest, granite monoliths (the 60 million year old Stawamus Chief is the largest piece of freestanding rock outside of Gibraltar), wilderness areas and snow-capped peaks, and it was declared by the UK's Guardian newspaper to be one of the world's five best road trips. Information kiosks from the Lii'wat and Squamish First Nations provide a parallel cultural journey and added incentive to stop and soak up the views along the way.

SHANNON FALLS 🚮 🚻 🛴

With a dramatic 335 metre (1100 foot) drop, not only is Shannon Falls the third highest waterfall in BC and formerly the key ingredient in Carling O'Keefe beer, but it was also featured in the Twilight movie, Breaking Dawn. Take the 5-minute stroll to the base of the falls. Washrooms and picnic tables are located by the parking area.

ALICE LAKE PROVINCIAL PARK 🚻 😩

This 397 hectare campground, in a forest of old-growth hemlock, features hiking and biking trails, picnic areas, two protected beaches and the popular Alice Lake itself.

TANTALUS LOOKOUT (11)

With pull-outs for both north and southbound traffic, and incredible views of the peaks named for the Greek myth, the Tantalus Range is the vista that lets locals know they're almost home.

GARIBALDI PROVINCIAL PARK

Running east of the Highway, the 195,000 hectare Garibaldi Provincial Park contains several ancient volcanoes, including Mount Garibaldi, more than 90 kilometres of hiking trails and several huts. It was protected in 1927 to preserve the "remarkable assemblage of glacial, volcanic and other natural features."

BRANDYWINE FALLS (1)

An easy 10-minute walk through the forest leads to a new viewing platform of the falls perched on the edge of a volcanic escarpment. The 143 hectare park features a picnic area, trails and washrooms.

Located in the Callaghan Valley just 10 km south of Whistler, near Whistler Olympic Park, this beautiful 3-tiered waterfall is easy to access from the viewing platform right next to the parking lot, with no walking or hiking required to view.

WHISTLER OLYMPIC PARK ()

A 7,000 hectare wilderness, known to the Squamish First Nation as a 'Wild Spirit Place,' Whistler Olympic Park was developed as the site of the cross-country, biathlon, Nordic combined, and ski jumping events for the 2010 Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games. The 6.5 kilometre Callaghan Valley access road is a popular bear-spotting stretch, and the Park's Visitor Centre, and café/restaurant, is open every day.

Tips for the drive

Keep an eye out for some of the area's incredible wildlife as you travel through Sea to Sky country, and have your camera ready for when you do spot a black bear, cougar, deer or bald eagle. But remember, these are wild animals that are best viewed from a safe distance. Never stop to view wildlife when driving. This stresses wildlife and creates unsafe road conditions due to traffic congestion.

Summer is also forest fire season in British Columbia, so please be fire smart:

Never toss a lit match.

Extinguish cigarettes completely.

Do not discard cigarettes and matches from

Take the time to become fire aware: check for advisories on highway signs, on the radio and in the newspaper, or call 1.888.3.FOREST for pre-recorded

Obey all backcountry and trail closures and fire bans.

Highway 99 is a mountain highway and during the winter it can be slippery. Make sure your vehicle has adequate tires or chains, give yourself some extra travel time, and don't tailgate – just take it easy and enjoy the drive.

Get the latest news and traffic updates from the area's local radio station, Mountain FM (107.1 FM in Squamish and 102.1 FM in Whistler).

Once you arrive in Whistler, be sure to stop by the Whistler Visitor Centre to learn more about Whistler and all of the activities that are available in the resort.
